Songs for Special Occasions A note on "Valentine Intro to Other Songs" "Valentine Intro" is an answer to "How do we introduce our presentation?" It can be sung a little higher or lower to accommodate the key of the song or songs that follow, if necessary. On the downbeat of measure 3, the name of the individual sending the valentine can be inserted ad-lib using the pitches of the written chord. NOTE: If any of the songs are to be recorded, you must follow the appropriate procedures. Droning Pitches An electronic pitch pipe is played for 5 minutes for each of the following keys to help singers hear the pitch whilst singing. Two file formats for each pitch are provided. According to Wikipedia, a "tag", in barbershop music, is the last section of the song. Its rough analog in Classical music is a coda. Tags are characterized by a heightening of the dramatic tension of the song, frequently including a "hanger", or posted (held) note. In addition, good tags can be sung as short, stand-alone works. Tags may be soft and tender but are typically characterized by loud, "paint-peeling," ringing chords. According to the competition rules of the Barbershop Harmony Society, every song entered for a competition must have a tag. When Barbershoppers get together, even if they have never met before, it is common for them to get into groups of four or more and sing a few tags. Those that don't know the tag being sung can be easily taught by those that do. This typically brings feelings of joy and camaraderie to all involved. Barbershop is a style of a cappella (unaccompanied) singing, characterised by four male vocal parts sung in close, rich, consonant harmony. The most well-known expression of this musical style is the "Barbershop quartet", the contemporary form of which has shed its twee image of four men with moustaches, striped suits and boater hats, and is now sleek, professional, musically sophisticated entertainment. Groups of men larger than four can also sing Barbershop music. Organised groups are usually known as "choruses" and are found in most North American cities, as well as in Australia/New Zealand, Great Britain and several countries in Europe. The organisation responsible for overseeing Barbershop singing and development in North America is the Barbershop Harmony Society (BHS). It organises an annual convention and competition for quartets and choruses, which has become the de facto world championships for the art form. Groups from affiliate organisations in other countries are also invited to compete. Contestants must adhere to strict rules governing their performance style and the musical structure and subject material of their chosen songs. The female counterparts to the Barbershop Harmony Society include Sweet Adelines International (SAI), Harmony, Inc (HI), and others. Mixed (male and female) Barbershop groups exist, but are not common. For more information, visit the Wikipedia page. SATB stands for "Soprano, Alto, Tenor, Bass (or Baritone)" - the names of the voice parts of a typical four-part mixed-gender (female/male) a cappella quartet or choir. SATB groups sing a wide variety of a cappella music, not just Barbershop A Cappella is a musical style comprising of one or more voices without instrumental accompaniment. The term is Italian (or Latin) and literally translates as "From the chapel" (although most a cappella music is not church-related). Barbershop is one type of a cappella singing. Multitrack refers to a recording technique. When it applies to tag-singing, it means that each of the voice parts is recorded separately and then mixed together after recording is complete (as opposed to recording several singers harmonising with each other in one recording). In a multitrack recording, each voice part can be sung by a separate individual, or one person can sing all voice parts. The term can equally apply to video recording. During the mixing stage of a multitrack video, the video screen is typically split into sections (4, 6, 8, etc), each section showing one person singing one voice part (they can often be all the same person, resulting in an eerie effect). A good example is here. Two articles on how to record a multitrack tag can be found on our Multitrack page. This site contains 5361 freely-downloadable Barbershop tags, with more being added every day. Many tags come complete with learning tracks, sheet music - even video clips of them being sung. Most of the tags are in the Barbershop style (male or female voicing), but there are also SATB and other a cappella tags available. It's all FREE! You can listen to the tags on the website, or download them to your own computer. Most importantly, anyone can upload a tag or a video! Every tag and video on this website was contributed by one of our members. If you know a good tag, become a member and then enter the details into our site. If you have the sheet music or feel like recording some learning tracks, even better! Videos too! If you know a good tag-related video on YouTube, you can easily attach it to a tag on our site. If you're one of those people who creates those excellent multitrack videos, become a member and add them all to our site - It only takes a few clicks for each one! We encourage you to download all the tags you want, and give each one a rating out of 5 (you don't have to be a member to do so). If you notice some missing/incorrect information about a tag, it would be great if you could let us know (click on the Add Missing Details button on that tag's page). Sorry! Something went wrong is your network connection unstable or browser outdated? Home Get Music Free Music and Tags With a few exceptions, many barbershop arrangements are "unpublished", meaning that you cannot walk into a music shop and buy sheetmusic published by the big music publishing houses. This does not mean however that they aren't available - far from it - you just need to know where to look! LABBS members should login to access additional information. The BHS has more arrangements available than at the above link, but if you click on the link you will find music that is cleared for use/sale in the UK, thus avoiding some heartache. If you are looking for arrangements for women's voices, you can click on the filter option 'SSAA/Women', however that will bring back all arrangements - make sure you check the territory they can sell to, click on the 'Additional Info' tab and scroll to the bottom for territories. SheetMusicPlus dot com Increasingly, barbershop arrangers are self-publishing their arrangements using the "ArrangeMe" programme on sheetmusicplus.com as a way of getting around the hassle of procuring permissions and licence to distribute. It's always worth a look, especially if you are looking for a specific song title or arranger to narrow down the search. LABBS publishes recent polecats arranged by the LABBS Music Category Judges via sheetmusicplus, at the following link: Published by LABBS on SMP Sweet Adelines International Sweet Adelines also publish arrangements as "proper" sheetmusic. Note that some arrangements are only available to members of Sweet Adelines. It is also common to approach arrangers direct, where their arrangements are not available by other means. This is more usually done when either looking to source a specific arrangement by that arranger, or where it is known that the arranger's style particularly suits your group. In either case, a normal web search is most likely to bring up the latest contact details or website. BHS has some free songs and tags available for download, including a few in women's voicing. They are able to be free as they are songs in the public domain*, so older. Harmony Incorporated Harmony Inc has some free music arranged for women's voicing for public access download - don't be put off by the words in the link! They are able to be free as they are songs in the public domain*, so older. * Note: The legal definition of when something becomes public domain is different in the USA to the UK. If you do not know the difference and wish to perform one of these songs, always check first.
